- If you could master only one skill from the list below, which would it be? Put a '1' next to it.
- If you could make a second and third choice, what are the next most important to you? Put a '2' and '3' next to them.
- Which ones on the list would you put last? Put a '13' '14' '15' next to them.

- ___ Discovering happiness
- ___ Finding direction in life
- ___ Maintaining good health
- ___ Learning principles of business
- ___ Making right choices
- ___ Overcoming temptations
- ___ Handling criticism
- ___ Becoming wise in money matters
- ___ Finding an efficient way to learn new skills
- ___ Relating to those in authority
- ___ Developing a happy marriage
- ___ Making the Bible practical for daily life
- ___ Becoming a better parent
- ___ Establishing strong relationships with others
- ___ Becoming a more confident person

Once everyone has selected the top three and bottom three, share with the group the reasons why you choose the ones you did.

One person in the group should keep a master list, putting a ✓ and a X next to the various ones that were chosen,
First choice (✓) Last choice (X)

Discuss as a group why so many people's choices for "most important" and "least important" were similar.
